Well that is interesting. Ok – have to do some digging on this. Are you seeking a response for a story being filed today?

A bit of clarity: the Europeans we've been speaking to said that all three images are of three different people.

Thanks

Thanks, Mark. Clarity on which one the Europeans believe to be the outlier would be helpful.

Here are two links. The first is the Rewards for Justice Photo, and the second shows the Iraqi government photo next to the US photo. As I mentioned, we've been told that European facial recognition experts have determined that the three images we have of Baghdadi--the US photo, the Iraqi photo, and the Mosul video--don't all show the same person. Will see if I can find out any more about which one might be the outlier.
